General Comment

You should agree to extend the comment period for this issue. It would give people a chance to sound off on this very important topic. It seems there are citizens out there that have not had a chance to hear what this may do to their jobs, or the income opportunities in this great state of Wyoming. I would venture that down the road if this is implemented, could some form of this rule be extended to the farmer or rancher who exports his beef, pork or wheat raised on federal lands? How about the oil producer, if the government decides to allow oil exports, this could potentially affect oil from federal lands. Just a thought.
