General Comment

This is absurd that the Government once again is trying to undermine what good comes out of mining coal i.e., royalties which help schools, infrastructure not to mention possible job elimination for hundreds of miners! The government instead should back the energy sectors and refrain from changing the royalty valuation so that we can continue to be sustainable, not dependent upon other countries! Keep the royalty valuation the same. All this will accomplish is discouraging federal lands energy production and if this passes, it could ruin towns and counties across America not to mention individual livelihoods. This needs to be studied further before turning this into law!
