General Comment

Dear ONRR,

Thank you for allowing us to comment on the Consolidated Federal Oil and Gas and Federal and Indian Coal Valuation Reform Proposed Rule.

We are against this proposed rule.

We believe it will create significant uncertainty and discourage mining on federal lands.

We also feel it would unfairly affect coal producers on federal leases who sell some of their coal through logistics businesses and coal cooperatives or power plants that use coal from their own mines.

It basically punishes miners that sell to small industrial customers and export coal.

It will also hurt coal cooperatives and captive mine power plants.

Before the government thought that it had to start taking over everything, these rules were drafted to promote these activities on federal lands and they have worked well.

This development has made it so we no longer need to depend on foreign governments for our energy and has made us energy independent.

We now have the ability to become a net exporter, which will create good paying jobs, which we need.

We need to keep on building America, not stifling its growth, which this rule will do.

Thanks, again for allowing us to comment, and in summary we oppose this rule.

Thank you,

Darryl Jozwik
